

Bridge Co. and Highway Commissioners Are Sued

TOWN OF DIXON CHARGES FRAUD IN AWARDED CONTRACT FOR CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGE AT WILLETT AVE.

ONE BRIDGE COST AS MUCH AS FOUR SIMILAR BRIDGES

Suit to Recover $17000 From Clinton Bridge and Iron Co. and Commissioners Rosbrook, Fisher and Lenox—Other Suits

Supervisor John E. Moyer, representing the town of Dixon, through his attorneys, Dixon and Dixon, and Edwards, has started to make trouble for the Clinton Bridge and Iron Works of Clinton, Ia., et al., the others being Tryon F. Rosbrook, Frank W. Fisher and William Lenox, commissioners of highways during the year, 1908.

Mr. Moyer has started suit in the circuit court to recover the sum of $1700, which he claims the taxpayers of the town lost in the construction of a bridge on Willett avenue, just outside of the city's limits on the northside, west of the city.

It is represented in the bill of 'chancery now on file in the circuit clerk's office that in the construction of the bridge in question, a structure 40 feet long and 14 feet wide, the taxpayers of the town had to pay $1700 more than was necessary to pay for the construction of a bridge of that size.

It is also represented in the bill that contracts for sums exceeding $75, ten days notice should be given by posting same in at least ten public places in and contiguous to the town, describing the work and time of completion, provided, however, that in case where bridges had been suddenly destroyed on any important highway then the commissioners might privately contract for replacing such bridge to an amount not exceeding $150.

The commissioners are accused of making a private contract for the construction of the bridge in question, and by not giving the proper notice, thereby doing away with competition.

It is further charged that during the month of September or October 1908, Tryon Rosbrook, Frank Fisher and William Lenox, purporting and pretending to act as commissioners of highways of the town of Dixon made a pretended contract with the Clinton Bridge and Iron Works for the construction of a steel bridge with foundation or abutments in Willett avenue for a sum in excess of $150. This was a violation of the law.

Fraud is Charged
The price paid for the construction of the bridge in question was $2300. There were "extras" also which amounted to the sum of $429.50, which were paid, making the total cost of the bridge $2729.50.

Fraud is charged in the bill. The commissioners are charged of having a personal pecuniary interest in connection with the pretended contract.

It is further charged that the town has been defrauded of the sum of $1700.

Report Not Approved
It will be remembered that at the town meeting last spring the commissioners' annual report was not approved. At the same meeting it will be remembered that a resolution was passed authorizing the supervisor to employ counsel to investigate and commence suits to recover money illegally spent.

That action was simply to pave the way for the suit which was started yesterday. What the outcome will be remains to be seen when the matter is threshed out in the courts.

Other Contracts Awarded

It will also be remembered that at the last regular session of the board of supervisors Hamilton township asked county aid for the construction of four bridges, similar to the one constructed in Willett avenue, and now a principal factor in the above suit. Two of these bridges were 36 feet in length and two 40 feet long. The estimated cost of the four bridges, according to the petition for aid now on file in the county clerk's office is $3800.

The contract for the construction of these four bridges was awarded to the Clinton, Bridge and Iron Works of Clinton, Ia., and the bids aggregated something less than $3800.

It will also be remembered that the Telegraph at that time called attention to the fact that it cost as much to construct one bridge in Dixon on township as it did four bridges in Hamilton township, and each bridge was about the same in length and width, and of similar materials.

Other Damage Suits
Two more damage suits were started yesterday.

Otto Beier has brought suit against George Clark and the Sterling, Dixon and Eastern Electric Railway company for the sum of $500 to recover the cost of a valuable horse which was killed by being struck by a car near Peoria avenue. Clark's agent was taking the animal to the bakery when the accident happened.

Phoebe A. Quimby, administratrix of the estate of Dwight Burnham, deceased for use of his next kin, has started suit against the Sterling, Dixon and Eastern Electric Railway company and the City of Dixon, for the sum of $5000, to recover damages for the death of Dwight Burnham, whose death it is said was due from injuries sustained by being struck by a car, while walking on the Galena avenue bridge.

The city was repairing the walk on the bridge and had a barrier constructed at the entrance of the bridge Mr. Burnham stepped from the walk onto the car tracks and was struck by a car. In both cases nothing but a praecipe has been filed.

In both cases the plaintiff is represented by the law firm of Trusdell Smith and Leach.

PRIMARY LAW ON INFLUENCING VOTES

DISFRANCHISEMENT AND JAIL SENTENCE FOR THOSE WHO VIOLATE LAW

Under the new Primary Law the candidates and their friends must be more careful than formerly about the way they pass out the money and call the boys up for a drink. Read the following section of the law:

"Any person who shall solicit, request, demand or receive, directly or indirectly, any money, intoxicating liquor or other thing of value, or the promise thereof, either to influence his vote, or to be used, or under the pretense of being used at any poll or other place prior to or on the day of a primary for or against any candidate for office, or for or against any measure or question to be voted upon at such primary, shall be deemed guilty of the infamous crime of bribery at primaries, and upon conviction thereof in any court of record shall be sentenced to disfranchisement by the judge of such court for a term of not less than five and not more than fifteen years, and to the county jail not less than three months or more than one year, and to pay the costs of prosecution and stand committed to the county jail until such costs are fully paid. That for a conviction of a second offense under this section, the first being alleged and proven, such offender shall be by sentence of the court forever thereafter disfranchised and deprived of the right to vote at a primary in this state, and be imprisoned in the county jail not less than one year, and be committed to jail in default of the payment of costs of prosecution until such costs are fully paid."

Rev. A. B. Whitcombe, rector of St. Luke's church of this city, has been asked to address one of the sessions of the general convention of Episcopal churches to be held in Cincinnati next month. This is an honor and a privilege which the Dixon pastor very much appreciates.

LORIMER DENIED SEAT AT BANQUET

ROOSEVELT REFUSES TO DINE WITH SOLON IN CHICAGO

MAKES SPEECH UPON "GRAFT"

Ex-President Addressed the Railroad Men and Others at Freeport Thursday

Chicago, Sept. 9.—An opportunity offered itself to former President Roosevelt to make good the sentiments he has shouted to the people of the west within the last two weeks. A misplay on the part of the Hamilton club of Chicago caused a fine rumour, in which the colonel reproved the Hamilton club and snubbed Senator Lorimer of Illinois, a member of the club.

Mr. Roosevelt refused to sit at the same table with Lorimer. As soon as he heard that the Illinois senator, who has been in the limelight concerning bribery charges of his election, was scheduled to appear at the Hamilton club dinner, Mr. Roosevelt angrily declared that in that case he would not attend. He was very emphatic in his declarations, too. The trouble came shortly after the colonel's arrival at Freeport. A delegation from the Hamilton club, headed by President John H. Batten, met him.

The colonel chatted pleasantly with Mr. Batten and the others and asked who would be at the dinner. He smiled at the mention of Uncle Joe Cannon, but his expression turned into one of anger when he heard that Senator Lorimer had been invited.

"Do you mean to say that Lorimer is to be there?" he asked Batten.

"Why yes," replied the Hamilton club president, "he has been invited and he has accepted."

The colonel looked around him, punched the atmosphere and exclaimed: "Then I shall decline to go. If Lorimer comes, you can count me out of it."

Members of the club tried to dissuade Mr. Roosevelt from hasty judgment, but he had made up his mind and nothing on earth could change it, he said.

Judge Batten told Mr. Roosevelt that he would ask Senator Lorimer to withdraw, but the colonel would hear of no such thing. He insisted that Lorimer be informed that Roosevelt had refused to associate publicly with him and that there was no room for the two of them at the dinner. He could either do that or leave the colonel out of it.

After a brief conference, the Chicagoans decided to send this message to Senator Lorimer: "Col. Roosevelt positively declines to sit at the same table with you. Our invitation to you for Thursday evening is therefore withdrawn."

The colonel was satisfied when he saw this message and took occasion to reiterate his absolute refusal to have anything to do with Senator Lorimer. "If I find that he does come anyway," he said before he reached Chicago, "I shall get up from the table. That is final."

Senator Lorimer when asked for a statement, refused absolutely to discuss the matter.

There were other things to occupy the minds of political gossips besides the Lorimer incident. In a long speech at Freeport the colonel startled some of his hearers by what a good many considered his first declaration in regard to his re-entering public office.

"I don't suppose I shall ever be in public life again," he said to the railroad men of Illinois, "but if I am there is always a chance that some time it may come up when I shall make my words good."

"No corporation or politician must ever support me for anything, with the idea that I will pardon that corporation or that politician if it or he is corrupt. If either corporation or politicians, either one or the other, helps to put me in a position of influence, let them remember that if they are corrupt, if they encourage corruption, in others or benefit by it themselves, they help me at their peril for I will hurt them if I get the chance."

A throng of laboring men greeted Mr. Roosevelt at Freeport. There were 10,000 persons on the grounds where the picnic of four organizations was being held. T. R. as a member of the American Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, met them as a fellow member, and made hits with the crowd by so doing. P. H. Morrissey called him "Labor's friend."

After his address to the railroad men, T. R. went back to the train. It was a great ovation and one that he appreciated as much as any on the whole trip.

Along the line of march the colonel was greeted by large mobs of people, who jammed the little stations and who forced themselves around the rear platform where he spoke. At Elgin late yesterday afternoon a bad accident was narrowly averted.

NO ONE ASKED HIM TO WITHDRAW

REPORT IN TRIBUNE CONCERNING I. F. EDWARDS IS NOT TRUE

To the Voters of the 13th Cong. Dis. I read in this morning's Tribune that Mr. McKenzie arranged for my withdrawal as candidate for Congressman hoping to profit thereby.

I want to say in self defense that Mr. McKenzie nor any one else ever hinted or suggested to me that I withdraw. What I did was of my own free will and accord and because of reasons given at the time.

I had been sick two weeks previous to my withdrawal as many can testify, and as I stated at that time, I didn't feel able, physically, to continue in the race.

In conclusion, I want to say that I did not withdraw in favor of Mr. McKenzie, and that whoever started such a report has done me an injustice. Respt.

I. F. Edwards.

ASK CITY COUNCIL FOR HEALTH OFFICER

CONCERTED APPEAL WAS MADE AT PUBLIC MEETING LAST NIGHT

WILL ENGAGE VISITING NURSE

Associated Charities Find Needed Work to Be Taken Up in Dixon

A public meeting was held at the city council rooms last evening under the auspices of the Associated Charities of Dixon, at which there was a very gratifying representative gathering, as nearly every church, society and club as well as industrial organization of the city and from one to a half dozen representatives present.

Prof. W. B. Snyder, president of the association, presided over the meeting, stating its purpose and calling upon the various speakers for their opinions upon the subjects under consideration. As a first move in the accomplishment of the purposes of the association, the sentiment of those present was before adjournment crystallized into a resolution presented by Rev. Martin approving the taking of steps necessary to engage a visiting nurse whose duty it shall be to care for cases of illness where a nurse is necessary yet where the means of the afflicted family will not permit of engaging a trained nurse.

Following a discussion, a motion was also framed by Mrs. Blake and seconded by Mr. Brinton, which received the unanimous endorsement of those present, that Mr. Hunt confer with other physicians of the city and urge the city council to appoint a medical health officer for Dixon.

The need for action upon both of these suggestions was made very clear by the speakers of the evening. Miss Stewart told of her work as a visiting nurse in the slums of New York city, and more especially of this work in York, Pa., where conditions are more nearly as they would be found in Dixon. The people in the homes where sickness is present are taught to care for themselves and sanitary conditions are improved so that there will not be so much chance for a return of the trouble. A contribution of whatever amount the family is able to give is applied toward the services of the visiting nurse, and if the family is unable to give anything the service is rendered just as willingly.

Dr. Hunt spoke of the great need of just such work in Dixon. He said we live in a favored part of the country, yet there is a great deal of semi-paupersim even here, and there is splendid work which the Dixon Associated Charities can do. He decried the indifference of legislators in relation to laws on public health. We have a department of agriculture which is very aggressive and efficient, but the human animal is sadly neglected. A department of health is a great need. The difficulty lies in the indifference of the people generally in regard to public health. Statistics show that 150,000 people in this country die every year as a result of tuberculosis. A like number die with pneumonia and nearly as many with typhoid fever—yet these are all preventable diseases. The causes cannot be overcome unless there is a systematic inspection, and this cannot be made locally without the authority of the city council.

In discussing the need of a visiting nurse, Dr. Hunt said that there is quite a large percentage of people who are not able to pay the expenses of a trained nurse. A visiting nurse who can spend an hour occasionally in the home is all that is necessary in many cases.

From his observation in pastoral visits Rev. Whitcombe stated that he believed there would be enough of the class of people in Dixon who could pay part of the expense of a nurse to largely support a visiting nurse. He said he had been in many homes where the work of a nurse would have aided very materially in transforming the home.

Rev. Mainwaring stated that the limitations of the hospital and the

JERSEY LILY'S OLD ADMIRER IS DEAD

Fred Gebhart Passes Away at Garden City, Long Island.

FAMOUS ON TWO CONTINENTS

Was Often in Trouble Over the "Jersey Lily" and Followed Actress All Over the World Until Estrangement Occurred.

New York, Sept. 9.—Frederick Gebhart is dead at Garden City, L. I. For thirty Frederick Gebhart had been one of the most widely known men about town. He was an indefatigable first nighter. He knew everybody on the stage and liked to associate with actors and actresses. When his father, Frederick Gebhart, Sr., died, Gebhart got, as did his sister, Mrs. Frederick Nelson, the income on a trust fund which amounted to $80,000 a year.

In 1882 he became famous on two continents as the admirer of Mrs. Langtry. The "Jersey Lily" landed in this country for the first time on Oct. 23, 1882, in company with her chaplain, Mrs. La Bouchere. During her second week here Mr. Gebhart met her, being introduced by Oscar Wilde. Gebhart expressed his admiration for Mrs. Langtry freely around the Union club and other clubs of which he was a member. He was seen driving with Mrs. Langtry nearly every day.

When the actress went to Boston, Mrs. La Bouchere refused to accompany her on account of the notoriety that had resulted from Gebhart's attentions. Mrs. Langtry and Gebhart had apartments in the same hotel at Boston. At Philadelphia Mr. Langtry and the New Yorker lived in the same hotel. He followed her to St. Louis and to Chicago.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat published an article in regard to the relations of the actress and the New York clubman on Jan. 17, 1883, while Mrs. Langtry and her friend were in that city. Gebhart met Col. A. B. Cunningham, editor of the paper, in the lobby of a hotel. He called Col. Cunningham a liar. The colonel challenged Gebhart to fight a duel, but Gebhart refused to accept.

During Mr. Langtry's extensive tour of the United States Mr. Gebhart was with her and accompanied her to San Francisco. When she returned to England he went across on the next steamship. In 1890 there was an estrangement and they were never on friendly terms thereafter.

On March 13, 1894, Gebhart married Louise Hellingsworth Morris in Baltimore. She was a famous beauty of that city and the wedding attracted a great deal of interest and was attended by society folk from many cities. Somehow Mr. and Mrs. Gebhart drifted apart, and in 1901 Mrs. Gebhart got a divorce from her husband. Soon after the decree was granted to her she married Henry Clews, Jr.

AND HE ONLY HAD A COLD IN THE HEAD.

That's What the Doctor Says About It, but He Can't Cure It.

"Akerchoo," remarked Mr. Hampton, as he came sniffing down the steps leading to the doctor's office, "These doctors make me tired. They think they are dealing in an advanced science and yet, by gracious, they can't cure a nasty little cold in the head."

"It's enough to make anybody cuss to hear them go on. I said to the doctor, I said, 'Doctor, I'm sick,' I said, 'I'm very sick,' I said, 'I'd fact, I feel hum all over,' I said, 'What'll I do?' I said, 'Oh,' says he, 'do'd do addything. You've just got a little cold in the head. Dhat's all. Id's dothing butch. Id'll wear off.'"

Knew When He Was Happy.

The soul of an editor who had died of starvation was being conducted to the Elysian fields. As they passed the portals of the infernal regions, he asked his guide if he might not go in and look around. The guide consented, but warned him to stay but a few minutes, as he could not wait long.

A long time passed, and the editor had not returned; so the guiding angel went in search of him. He found him before a cage in which a number of doomed wretches were being roasted on red-hot griddles. Over the cage was the sign "Delinquent Subscribers."

"Come," said the guide; "we must be going."

"Don't wait for me," replied the editor. "I'm not coming. This is Heaven enough for me!"

Empty.

When opera glasses first came commonly into use a young man escorted his aged maiden aunt from the country to a "playhouse." During one of the acts she complained that the light was too dim. He borrowed an opera glass from the friend sitting near, and, handing it to her, said: "Here, auntie, try this glass." Covering the suspicious-looking object with her handkerchief, she placed it to her lips and took a long pull, and then handed it back to her nephew in great disgust, saying disappointedly: "Why, there isn't a drop in it."

Chivalry.

A highwayman held up a gasoline runabout on the outskirts of Rome with a shot in the air. Then he ran forth from the tomb that had concealed him—the holdup happened on the Appian way—and found, to his surprise, only a woman in the little car. "Where, madam, is your husband?" he demanded, sternly and suspiciously. "He's under the seat," she answered, flushing. "Then," said the highwayman, "I won't take nothing. It's bad enough to have a husband like that, without being robbed into the bargain."

Rubbing it In.

Let's see, didn't the court allow Miss Love $5,000 for her broken heart?

Yes.

And didn't she testify that she could never love another?

Yes.

Now I understand she is going to marry Jones.

She is. You see, Jones and her former sweetheart are enemies and she thinks it will make him writhe to see Jones spending his money.

Not So Much Needed.

BURNED TO DEATH BY MOLTEN METAL

Auto Party Collides With Moving Cauldrons of Slag.

OCCURS AT ILLINOIS STEEL MILL

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lesterhouse and Mrs. Blanche Hunt Were the Victims—Miss Becker Seriously Burned.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Two women and a man were burned to death in South Chicago last night when the automobile in which they were riding and which was speeding at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, collided with a train of three moving cauldrons of molten metal and slag on One Hundred and Fourth street, near an entrance to the Illinois Steel company's plant. A third woman was seriously, but not fatally burned.

The auto was owned and driven by Peter Lesterhouse, a contractor, of 309 One Hundred and Twelfth street. Sitting in front beside him was his wife. In the rear seats were Miss Anna Becker, Mrs. Lesterhouse's sister, and Mrs. Blanche Hunt, a friend.

The train of cauldrons is moved by a dummy engine, and the route leads out on the street by a narrow gauge track, then around to the rear of the plant, where it is dumped in the lake. It consists of steel refuse.

The Lesterhouse party had been out for two hours and were returning home. The machine was crossing One Hundred and Fourth street at high speed when the train of cauldrons steamed out of the steel works. According to the steel company's employees, they supposed the machine was going to stop.

The usual illumination shot up from the mouths of the great pots. Lesterhouse apparently paid no attention to the danger ahead. When he did it was too late. Miss Becker jumped and escaped with serious burns. The machine hit one of the big pots with the force of a catapult. The molten mass shot upward like a geyser and bounded in showers on the trio. Who lay burned and bleeding beside the wrecked car.

The impact had tossed Mr. and Mrs. Lesterhouse and Mrs. Hunt out of the car and into the path of the molten shower. They were instantly burned to death. The steel men stopped their train and ran to the rescue, Miss Baker was sent to the hospital.

COAL STRIKE IS SETTLED

Illinois Miners Will Return to Work on Monday Next.

Approach of Cold Weather, Coal Shortage and Demand for Fuel Cause Concessions on Both Sides.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—The strike of coal miners in Illinois is settled. The 40,000 or 45,000 men who have been idle since last April will probably resume their labors next Monday.

Approach of cold weather, shortage of coal and the demands of the railroad companies and large manufacturers for an immediate adjustment of the differences between the miners and their employers, induced both sides to make concessions.

GOOD WAY TO USE 'HYOMEI' FOR CATARRH

Besides breathing through the inhaler a few minutes a day many catarrh sufferers write that they find inhaling HYOMEI (pronounced High-o-me) from a bowl of steam-ingwater each night before retiring a great aid in curing stubborn cases.

Try it, it's very simple, gives quick relief and makes you breathe easier. Fill a bowl half full of boiling water; pour into the water a teaspoonful of HYOMEI, cover head and bowl with a towel, and breathe through nose and mouth the pleasant, medicated antiseptic and healing vapor that arises.

This method relieves that stuffiness at once, and makes your head feel fine.

You can get a bottle of HYOMEI at Rowland Bros. and druggists everywhere, for only 50 cents. Ask for extra bottle HYOMEI inhalant.

But bear in mind that a HYOMEI outfit which includes inhaler and bottle of HYOMEI costs $1.00.

HYOMEI is guaranteed by Rowland Bros. and druggists everywhere to cure catarrh, sore throat, coughs, colds, asthma and croup, or money back. Try it on that generous basis.

PROFITABLE DAIRYING

By HUGH G. VAN PELT
Dairy Expert Iowa State Dairy Association

Problems Up to Dairymen

With all the great advantages that dairy farming presents, it has without doubt its disadvantages, and many of them, so that the farmer who anticipates entering dairying as a business must not do so with the idea that there is nothing to be found in the business except profits. As a matter of fact, there are, comparatively speaking, very few farmers who will make out of dairying the greatest profits that are to be found therein.

Kind Treatment Necessary.

The dairy cow is more nearly an artificial being than any other animal to be found upon the farm for, as a matter of fact, there was a time when her whole and sole duty was to beget a likeness of herself and produce milk in quantities only sufficient to large for the sustenance of her offspring and often for a period of only five or six months, when the youngster was weaned and compelled to work out his own salvation on the grasses of the prairies. But realizing the opportunities for developing the maternal instincts in this individual animal, man has taken and developed her to the point where at the present time we find that she not only reproduces herself but she also supplies milk in quantities sufficiently large to raise her offspring and supply to her owner a large and profitable amount of milk and butter-fat daily. In bringing about this change in her make-up, she has become more delicate and more sensitive to the treatment which she receives, and it rests within the power of the owner rather than in the cow herself to increase or decrease in a large measure her profit through care, feed and attention, kind or cruel treatment and proper or improper methods of handling. If the farmer realizes that it is not possible for him to be content with confinement and detail work it is better not to largely increase the dairy business which he now has upon his farm because the success of the business rests with continually working with the cow Sundays as well as other days, and taking care of the small things, vidual cows to be found in any one of the four particular dairy breeds than there is to be found between the breeds themselves as a whole. There probably has been in the past a place for what might be termed the dual purpose cow, and likely in the future there will be some such place. It is not likely, however, that the man who has given the matter thorough consideration and study and wishes to conduct his dairy farm on business principles and from the standpoint of the greatest possible net profit, can be lured into the belief that he should install upon his farm dual purpose cattle or animals having the power perhaps to produce fairly good results from the standpoint of milk and butter production and fairly good results from the standpoint of the production of beef calves. Now, it is possible undoubtedly, to select cows of the beef breeds that will produce during the year an average of from 100 to 200 pounds of butter. More often, however, it is found that such a herd produces more nearly an average of 100 pounds of butter than 200 pounds; and, then, of course, the calves from these cows, being bred along beef lines, if raised and cared for properly, will prove fairly profitable from the standpoint of beef production. It is the buyer of beef that always advises the farmer to use dual purpose cattle for his farm and dairy rather than beef cattle, because he realizes that the time has come when it is unprofitable for the farmer to keep a cow for the entire year solely for the production of a calf; but it is possible, if she produces in addition to a calf which may be valued at from $5 to $10, 100 pounds of butter-fat which at this time is worth nearly $30, that she may be and probably is a source of real profit because, kept under the very cheapest conditions, her feed may not cost more than $30 and it may be estimated that the calf is worth $10. Now, if a grade calf, from the standpoint of beef production can be valued at more than $10 at the time it is born, I would like to have cow will have bull calves every year that are fit for nothing except to be killed at once. The time is rapidly coming, however, if not here already, when the farmer is to know that every heifer calf from a real dairy cow that has produced from 400 to 700 pounds of butter during the year, is worth more money the day it is born than are the two calves from one of the common beefier types of cows produced in two consecutive years, providing they be alternately male and female. But for the purpose of deciding in an unprejudiced manner which is the best breed for the dairy, we will leave out of consideration for the present time the value of the dairy cow's calves and take it for granted that they are destroyed immediately upon birth and we will allow the calf, whether male or female, from the dual purpose cow, to be worth $10 at birth, and further allow $1 per year in the valuation of the beef type of cow, believing that when she is ready to die her carcass will be worth that much more to put in tin cans.

The 140 Pound Cow.

This is the type of cows that are being milked, the average production of which is 140 pounds. There are many herds of real dairy cows that are averaging from 300 to 400 pounds of butter a year, and taking this out of consideration we would probably find that the dual purpose cow or the cow of a beefy nature, with the power of producing a beef steer or a dairy heifer, is producing in butter fat quite likely about 100 pounds per year. Taking for granted that she herself is producing 140 pounds of butter per year on the average—and she is no more than paying for her keep from the standpoint of the butter she produces—and giving to her owner each year a calf, some skimmed milk for the pigs, and adding to the fertility of the farm, there is very little reason to complain about her existence, because in all liability she is a profitable animal to the farmer and, without doubt, more largely so than most any other animal on the farm. But the question that arises is whether or not she is making the profit that should be made from an animal upon which there is bestowed so much feed, care and labor. We have only to look to the herds that are producing an average of from 300 to 400 pounds of butter per year to be in a position to answer in the negative. Were we to sacrifice the calf and the extra value of the carcass of the cow at the time of death, an annual valuation to the of amount of $11, and select instead of that a cow that will produce twice as much butter fat, or 280 pounds, and sell it for 28 cents, which has been less than the average price received by most dairymen during the past year, we would have instead of $11, $78.40.

Great Mistakes.

Now, without doubt, this places the consideration on a basis where any one can figure for himself which class or breed of cattle he is to choose for the dairy. During past years, and even at the present time, we find thousands of farmers that are annually sending $78.40 after this mythical $11 that they have been led to believe is to be found in the dual purpose cow as an advantage over the dairy cow; but it is apparent in the face of facts that it is the utmost of folly year after year to sacrifice $78.40 in the production of butter for the sake of securing a $10 calf and having a carcass that is worth $1 per year that is used for the purpose of beef after its useful life has ended. This is a matter that can very easily be figured out and is not subject to dispute. Of course, there are other ways of figuring, but in the end the same result has been reached. In arguing against the idea of the dairy cow invariably the point comes up that the United States is a beef-eating nation and must have beef, and this is a fact. There never will come a time, I hope, when we will not have a sufficient amount of beef to be consumed on every table in the United States, but it is taxing the dairy cow a little harder than is necessary to ask her to produce the millions of pounds of butter that are absolutely necessary, and at the same time produce the beef that is to be consumed upon the tables, unless she is to be paid accordingly. It would not be right to ask the farmer to do all that he is doing at the present time, working hard as he is, and at the same time produce in addition to the food and clothing for the world, the manufactured articles, reading material, etc., for the same world simply because we must have manufactured articles and reading material. There are many men and farmers who are not capable of conducting dairy herds in the most profitable degree because of their dislike for the business. Likely these same men are well adapted for the production of beef, and the dairymen will, no doubt, leave the production of that article to him, realizing that if he is to dairy, his profits, success and pleasure are to be found in the milking of real good dairy cows.

Says Cold Was Intense and Heart Sank When He Saw Liquid in the Tubes Congealed.

Paris, Sept. 9.—At Issy-Les-Moulineux a Peruvian aviator of the name of Chavez reached a record height in a Bleriot monoplane, ascending 8,790 feet. He says that after passing the height reached by Morane at Deauville, 8,472 feet, on Sept. 3, he began to feel that he could go no higher. The cold was intense. He continually felt as if his nose was bleeding.

Then suddenly he caught sight of the liquid in the tubes in front of him and his heart sank when he saw that it was congealed. He resolved to descend without hesitation. He raced with a cloud moving in the same direction he was going. As he did not wish to penetrate he rose slightly and glided ahead of it, giving it his back wash, so to speak.

The "Don't Need To" Theory

In the recent debate at Reno Mr. James Jeffries failed to convince Mr. John Johnson. Some seven or eight years ago Mr. Jeffries was the leading man in his line of work. Business was good and his profits were big.

Having all the money he could handle at the time, he concluded to take a rest.

To be sure he planned to get in the field again at the proper time.

But everything was rosy and there really seemed no good and sufficient reason why he should spend so many hours a day keeping his muscles lithe and strong and his wind good and his heart and nerves in trim.

Eventually the meeting with Mr. Johnson was arranged. Mr. Jeffries was still tolerably content with what he had done.

(Brother, a has-done is about as bad as a has-been.)

Mr. Jeffries did not care to stand up in the training ring and punch and take punches. He did not see any necessity of practicing side-steps and feints and rushes.

He knew all about them. Why, seven years ago he had done all of that he ever needed to do.

Mr. Johnson did not overlook the boxing and the wrestling and the clinching and the sidestep-ping, etc.

As a result, Mr. Jeffries received Mr. Johnson's compliments on the point of the jaw and his business career closed.

Advertising a business is the training of that business.

Advertising keeps a business healthy.

It tones up its liver, strengthens its biceps, steadies its heart and keeps its nerves in order.

Once in a while a man decides he is doing so much business that he can stop advertising for a while and run on momentum.

Momentum is the gradual process toward a full stop.

The momentum business is usually prematurely full stopped by the straight left jab of the well-trained competitor who finds his opening in the fifteenth round.

If you want to stay in business stay in the advertising field.

No matter how much business you are doing, keep up the energy that makes it.

You might as well cut off your legs because you are running well in a foot race as to cut off your advertising because your business is too good.

You might as well tell the insurance man that you are so healthy you will drop the policy for a few years as to stop advertising because the orders are piling up.

"Don't need to" is the eventual preliminary to "Can't do it."

The only man who doesn't need to advertise is the man who has retired from business.

The only policy holder who doesn't need to pay his premiums is dead.

Mr. Jeffries doesn't need to train any more. He is licked.

A Dual Purpose Cow—She Makes Beef Out of a Part of Her Feed.

resting assured that the larger things will, to a great extent, take care of themselves.

Which Breed Best for Dairying? When, finally, the farmer has made up his mind to actually begin dairying, the first question which presents itself to him, and the one which he asks more frequently than any other, is which breed of cows is the best for dairy purposes? There is probably no question to which it is so difficult to reply. It is easy to tell him that he should utilize one of the four dairy breeds. This is not enough, for he some one advise me. There are thousands of them being sold that do not bring this much money and there is a possibility of their being bought for less than $10 and placed upon the farm and raised and fed into remarkable beef steers. This being the case, it is the height of folly to give the cow any more credit for the calf she has produced than $10. It is not a question of what the calf is worth when it is sold upon the block, as to the value the cow has been to her owner, because in all likelihood the cost of the animal at the time it has reached a marketable age has been very nearly all that he can be sold for in advance of $10 which we have given him credit for being worth at the time of birth.

Now, the question is, can the farmer or dairyman afford to keep a cow all year that will not produce him more than from 100 to 200 pounds of butter fat for the purpose of producing a $10 calf? This is a question of real importance and one that should be solved by every farmer in determining which breed of dairy cows is best for his purposes. But this is not the only allurement presented by the dual purpose cow; there is another that is of real value in dollars and cents, and every dairyman has been advised that the dual purpose cow, after she has served her period of usefulness in the dairy, can be fattened up and sold for beef and will bring probably $10 more as a canner than will her sister, the dairy cow. Now, the period of usefulness of a cow is, or should be, about ten years, so that this means the beef cow is more valuable by $1 per year than is the dairy cow. Adding this to the valuation we have ascribed to the beef calf, we find that the dual purpose cow, producing an average of from 100 to 200 pounds of butter fat per year, has to her credit also $11 over and above that which the dairy cow has, providing we lead ourselves to believe, as many have done, that the real dairy wishes to know which of the four breeds of dairy cows is the best. An unprejudiced reply to this question will always bring the answer that there are good cows and poor cows in every dairy breed, and the good cows of one breed are much better than the poor cows of another breed in every instance. And, after selecting the breed suitable to the conditions of the farm, the likes and dislikes of the owner, then it is a matter of selecting the good individual cows of that breed. There is a far greater difference between the indi-

PRIMARY ELECTION

The Democrats who are planning to vote in the Republican primaries may have overlooked one little feature of the primary law which may interest them and save them some embarrassment in the future if they stay in their own party where they belong.

If a Democrat votes in a Republican primary he is not simply a Republican for the day, as he may imagine, but the new primary law makes him a Republican for two years after that date and during these two years he is barred from voting in the primary of any other party, and if he violates the law he may be fined and imprisoned. In other words the only way to change parties is to keep out of all primaries for the following two years, after voting in the primary of one party. Men of that character are not wanted in the Republican party for any length of time.

"Whoever knowing that he is not a qualified elector at a primary, will fully votes at such primary, shall on conviction thereof, be fined in a sum not exceeding $1000, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court."

We shall have more to say on the subject of Democrats voting in Republican primaries in a day or two and shall make some suggestions which if they are followed may keep some Democrats out of jail and save them some heavy fines.

ROOSEVELT'S WARNING OF THE DANGERS OF GRAFT

If the people of America are content to send to represent them in the state or the national legislature men who, in their heart of hearts, have not obtained their offices honestly, but have obtained their offices dishonestly and by corruption, whom they know have practiced corruption in public life, they may make up their minds that they will get the government to which they are entitled, and a bad government it will be.

No republic can last if corruption is allowed to eat into its public life, no republic can last if the private citizens sit supinely by and either encourage or tolerate corruption among its representatives.

The legislature whose doings have been exposed was guilty of the foulest and basest corruption, and, therefore, of the most infamous treason to American institutions.—Theodore Roosevelt, Sept. 9, 1910.

Everyone taking part in this program is a member of the student body, as it was thought well to put the program in the hands of the students, as it is decidedly a student affair.

Following this program an informal reception will be held and many pleasant games are planned, which will help to make the young people enjoy the affair, as well as cement the college students, who have come here from all parts of the country, into one large and happy family.

Many old students will be with us tonight and will help the new students feel very much at home.

THESE WERE WED

A marriage license to the following parties was issued Wednesday Sept. 7th, by the county clerk:

David E. Shearer, Dixon.
Mrs. Mary Stanley, same.

A Nice Distinction.

He was hurrying for the train, somewhat impeded by a clumsy crate containing a large live turkey. As he approached the gate the guard stopped him with a gesture.

"You can't take that through here," he said. "That'll have to be checked or go by express."

"But I can't stop," declared the passenger. "I've got to get this train." And he tried to push through again.

The guard held him back. "That is baggage," he said firmly, "and it must go in the baggage car."

"Oh, no," replied the other, with a charming and confident smile; "it's luggage. Don't you see I'm lugging it?" And he had slipped by before the astonished guard had caught his breath.—Youth's Companion.

No Barrier.

Miss Payne—You can't marry Jack because I'm engaged to him. Miss Faire—What's that got to do with it?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ASK CITY COUNCIL FOR HEALTH OFFICER

unanimity of the movement as expressed in the meeting convinced him that a needed work is to be accomplished by the association.

The chairman called upon Mr. Brinton, who always has the happy faculty of looking upon the cheerful side of a serious question. Mr. Brinton said that if this work was left to the men there would be nothing done but that the women had taken it up and we might expect to see the desired end accomplished. He said he had had little to do with doctors, but had a little experience last spring. According to his report, all the doctor did was to entertain him while the nurse had all the care and he thinks the doctor should have divided his fees with the nurse. This was but to illustrate that a nurse is often more needed in a home than a physician.

There was such a hearty sentiment at the meeting in favor of the appointment of a medical health officer for Dixon and for the engaging of a visiting nurse that there seems little question but what the object of the meeting meeting will be accomplished.

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

An abundant harvest of hay and small grain has already been gathered, and since the rains the corn crop promises to be fully an average. For all of this our hearts should well up with gratitude to God. An admirable and most practical way of expressing our appreciation of God's goodness is attendance at His services. Usual services Cordial invitation and hearty welcome to all. Visitors and strangers in the city especially welcomed.

EDENA AND THE KINGDOM

Rev. L. W. Martin will preach at Eldena at 11 a. m. and at the Kingdom church at 7:30 p. m.

Pastor's evening theme—"Living in The Sunshine."
The band of Fellowship to new members at this service.
Sermonette—"Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty; they shall behold the land that is very far off." How could it be otherwise? Can we limit the grace of such a King?
Francis of Assisi, kneeling before the crucifix, saw the Crucified, and at the same time heard the weary call of many lands.
William Carey saw Him and India; Morrison saw Him and China; Livingstone saw Him and Africa. "Is there on earth a closer bond than this—
That 'My Beloved's mine,' and I am His?"
It is the debtors of Calvary that must become the world's redeemers. If the Home church is slow to say: "I am debtor" it is because she does not earnestly seek the vision—because she is afraid of the pilgrimage to the place where He was crucified, but the signs are changing, the banners of hope are unfurled in the dawning sky. The Church of Christ shall yet have her great day. She will gaze around, wondering at her own unfaithfulness; glad tears will be in her eyes, as she takes in the whole world, and reverently confesses, "I am debtor" and "I am His."

FAMILY THEATRE

To be thoroughly entertained and to enjoy a good laugh go to the Family theatre and witness the show now on there. Bunth & Ruud, from the "old country," have a sketch that is truly funny, producing some novelities from the old country, which have never before been heard of while their powers of the occult is marvelous. There is no shoddy, cheap comedianism about these two; you laugh not because you want to, but because you have to. The pictures, especially the one showing the city of Havana, Cuba, so beautifully are very good. Harry Selwyn Mack and Co., in the Blind Beggar's Dream, have some very nice scenery and give a pretty act, pertaining more to the pathetic and sober side of life. Their singing is far above the average. "The Rosary," that beautiful song, is given with fine effect. Don't miss the show in the next three nights.

Ultra Practical.

"I notice," said a husband who was reading a lengthy letter which his wife had written and had handed to him for perusal, "that you have made a stupid mistake. You have written 'mirage' instead of 'marriage'."

"Either will do," replied the lady. "They both signify an illusion."

SENATOR LORIMER

With Whom Col. Roosevelt Refused to Dine at Banquet.

Thousands of town folks were down to meet him. School boys and girls on their way home joined in and upset the inadequate police force. They pressed against a board fence that was not strong enough to withstand the tremendous strain and gave way. About 100 children and grown ups tumbled down the embankment. "Stand where you are," Mr. Roosevelt shouted, "don't push."

A couple of policemen broke through and reported that outside of a few bruises no one had been hurt. It looked like a panic for a few moments, but it was not serious after all. Elgin recovered his customary composure before the train pulled out.

At Belvidere and other towns of lesser importance the colonel encountered howling crowds. He made the same sort of speeches that he has delivered for some time; on honesty, corruption, good citizenship and crookedness.

T. R. MAKES AN ADDRESS

Talks to Members of Hamilton Club at Banquet Spread.

States Chicagoans Should Be Ashamed to Allow Corrupt Men to Represent Them in Legislature.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Mr. Roosevelt did not mince matters in his speech last night before the Hamilton club of Chicago. He hit out straight from the shoulder and told the men of Illinois that the four men who have been indicted for bribery in the legislature and the four who have confessed have committed a most infamous treason against American institutions.

The colonel told Chicago that she ought to be ashamed to allow men of corrupt leanings to represent them in the legislature. He said that any sane minded man who had read the reports of the two district attorneys engaged in the Lorimer case, could arrive at only one conclusion. He did not mention names, but he made himself clear on every point.

One of the important points that T. R. brought out was the fact that it is not necessary to convict a man in a court of law to be able to drive him out of public life. Law honesty is not the only thing, he said. If you know he is crooked cinch him.

Chicago is up in the air over the affair between Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Lorimer. They expected the colonel to refer to that in his speech, but he did not mention it.

Russian Peasant Weddings.

A peasant wedding in Russia means a festival for the whole village and often for the young people from neighboring villages as well. Weeks before the eventful day the young girls assemble at the home of the bride to help her sew. The bridegroom comes with his men friends to treat them to nuts and sweets. Appropriate songs are sung, and the bridegroom's generosity is put to the test. One of the girls holds out to him a plate, and if he puts down a silver coin they sing him a song full of compliments, but if he gives copper and is known to be able to afford more mockery follows. The whole village is invited to the marriage ceremony, which is performed with all the ancient superstitious rites and solemnities.

Retribution.

"You are charged with allowing your family only 15 cents a day for sustenance."

"That's all I do allow, your honor, and it is enough."

"Enough to feed a wife and six children?"

"So I contend."

A SHREWD SHOPPER.

The Little Play by Which She Won Attentive Service.

"Chicago people certainly have the knack of getting on," a shopper said. "In the suit department of a big store I met a Chicago woman who had been in New York less than a week. She said she wasn't buying anything; had just come to get the lay of the land. In the process of getting it she stopped a cashgirl and said:

"Is that Miss Blake selling white linen skirts to that fat woman? I understand you have a Miss Blake in the department."

"No; that is Miss Barton," said the cashgirl. "The Chicago woman wrote the name in her address book. Then she showed me the names of saleswomen in several other stores."

"This is only a preliminary to real shopping," she said. "It pays to take the extra trouble. If I expect to buy more than $5 worth of anything at a strange store I learn beforehand the name of the saleswoman whose looks I like best. Then when I go back to buy I can say, as I shall do here tomorrow, 'I would like Miss Barton to wait on me,' and, although Miss Barton has never set eyes on me, the fact that I can call her name gives her the impression that she must have sold me a $100 dress at some time, and I get twice as good service as I would get if I knew nobody by name."—New York Sun.

COURTESIES AT SEA.

Dipping the Flag Ranks Before the Booming of the Guns.

In the days before cannon and indeed until comparatively recent times a vessel made its salutation by lowering or "dipping" its flag. This is the oldest and most honorable greeting which a ship can give. It ranks before the booming of guns, however many.

This salute has always been demanded by English speaking seamen, and its execution has burned the hearts and the powder of generations of naval commanders. For a foreign ship, whether merchant or martial, to enter an English port without veiling topsails or dipping its national flag was to court the chances of war, although the profoundest peace existed. Without warning or argument the shore defenses or a man-of-war would send a round of shot across the bows or between the masts of the insolent intruder, and if the offending flag came not down instantly the foreigner was brought to her senses by being raked through and through. Such was the reception accorded by Sir John Hawkins in the sixteenth century to the Spanish admiral who in time of peace sailed into Portsmouth sound without veiling his topsails or lowering his flag.

Salutes are essential matters of naval etiquette and are exchanged under an elaborate code arranged between the powers. The number of guns to be fired under all conceivable circumstances is minutely stipulated.—New York Press.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

A Drink From the Well That Was Not Appreciated.

The girl accepted the glass of ice water with a fervor in her words that went away beyond the manner of ordinary politeness.

"Yes," she confessed, "I am deeply grateful. You don't know what a blessing it is to be able to get a drink out of a refrigerator—just open the door and take it out. You see, I've been visiting at one of those houses in the country where the poetic old oaken bucket still is on the job. Every time I wanted a drink I had to get a knife and a weight and a rope and a bucket and a cup. I dug the lid of the well up with the knife. Then I adjusted the weight on one side of the bucket so it would tip over and take in water when it hit the bottom. Then I drew up the bucket, took a cupful of water, coiled the rope, shut down the lid and put the knife away again. All that for just one little drink!

"Once we went out driving. We found one well where we couldn't get the lid up. We found another where the rope was too short. I was just dying for a drink by that time, so one of the boys held another upside down in the well—by the legs, you know—and we dipped out a drink that way. Thank you, I'm very comfortable where I am. No oaken buckets for me, except in songs."—Kansas City Star.

Mendacious Journalism

Reprinted from an article by Theodore Roosevelt in The Outlook, by special arrangement with The Outlook, of which Theodore Roosevelt is Contributing Editor. Copyright, 1910, by The Outlook Company. All Rights Reserved.

In the New York Evening Post of Friday, August 26, there appeared in an editorial article the following statements:

"I will make the corporations come to time," shouted Roosevelt to the mob. But did he not really mean that he would make them come down with the cash to elect him, as he did before? For a man with Mr. Roosevelt's proved record it is simply disgusting humbug for him to rant about the corporations upon whose treasurers he fawned when he was president and wanted their money for his campaign. Does he think that nobody has a memory which goes back to the life insurance investigations, and that everybody has forgotten the $50,000 taken from widows and orphans and added to Theodore Roosevelt's political corruption fund? Did he not take a big check from the Beef Trust, and glad to get it? And now he is going to make the corporations come to time! One can have respect for a sincere radical, for an honest fanatic, for an agitator or leveler who believes that he is doing God's will; but it is hard to be patient with a man who talks big but acts mean, whose eye is always to the main chance politically, and who lets no friendship, no generosity, no principle, no moral scruple stand for a moment between himself and the goal upon which he has set his overmastering ambition.

"This champion of purity, this roarer for political virtue, is the man who was for years, when in political life, hand in glove with the worst political corruptionists of his day; who toaded to Platt, who praised Quay, who paid court to Hanna; under him as president Aldrich rose to the height of his power, always on good terms with Roosevelt; it was Roosevelt who, in 1906, wrote an open letter urging the re-election of Speaker Cannon, against whom mutterings had then begun to rise; it was Roosevelt who asked Harriman to come to the White House secretly, who took his money to buy votes in New York, and who afterwards wrote to 'My Dear Sherman'—yes, the same Sherman—reviling the capitalist to whom he had previously written saying: 'You and I are practical men.'"

The Evening Post is not in itself sufficiently important to warrant an answer, but as representing a class with whose hostility it is necessary to reckon in any genuine movement for decent government, it is worth while to speak of it. There are plenty of wealthy people in this country, and of intellectual hangers-on of wealthy people, who are delighted to engage in any movement for reform which does not touch the wickedness of certain great corporations and of certain men of great wealth. People of this class will be in favor of any aesthetic movement, they will favor any movement against the small grafting politician, against the grafting labor leader, or any man of that stamp; but they cannot be trusted the minute that the reform assumes sufficient dimensions to jeopardize so much of the established order of things as gives an unfair and improper advantage to the great corporation, and to those directly and indirectly responsive to its wishes and dependent upon it. The Evening Post and papers of the same kind, and the people whose views they represent, would favor attacking a gang of small bosses who wish to control the Republican party; but they would, as the Evening Post has shown, far rather see these small bosses win than see a movement triumph which aims not merely at the overthrow of the small political boss, but at depriving the corporation of its improper influence over politics, depriving the man of wealth of any advantage beyond that which belongs to him as a simple American citizen. They would be against corporations only after such corporations had been caught in the crudest kind of criminality.

I have never for one moment counted upon the support of the Evening Post or of those whom it represents in the effort for cleanliness and decency within the Republican party, because the Evening Post would support such a movement only on condition that it was not part of a larger movement for the betterment of social conditions. But this is not all. In the struggle for honest politics there is no more a place for a liar than there is for the thief, and in a movement designed to put an end to the dominion of the thief but little good can be derived from the assistance of the liar. Of course objection will be made to my use of this language. My answer is that I am using it merely scientifically and descriptively, and because no other terms express the facts with the necessary precision. In the article in which the Evening Post comes to the defense of those in present control of the Republican party in New York state, whom it has affected to oppose in the past, the Evening Post through whatever editor personally wrote the article, practised every known form of mendacity.

Probably the Evening Post regards the decalogue as outworn; but if it will turn to it and read the eighth and ninth commandments, it will see that bearing false witness is condemned as strongly as theft itself. To take but one instance out of the many in this article, the Evening Post says: "It was Roosevelt who asked Harriman to come to the White House secretly, who took his money to buy votes in New York, and who afterwards wrote to 'My Dear Sherman'—yes, the same Sherman—reviling the capitalist to whom he had previously written, saying: 'You and I are practical men.'"

Not only is every important statement in this sentence false, but the writer who wrote it knew it was false. As far as I was concerned, every man visited the White House openly, and Mr. Harriman among the others. I took no money from Mr. Harriman secretly or openly to buy votes or for any other purpose. Whoever wrote the article in the Evening Post in question knew that this was the foulest and basest lie when he wrote the sentence, for he quotes the same letter in which I had written to Mr. Harriman as follows: "What I have to say to you can be said to you as well after election as before, but I would like to see you some time before I write my message." I am quoting without the letter before me, but the quotation is substantially, if not verbatim, accurate. That statement in this letter to Harriman is of course on its face absolutely incompatible with any thought that I was asking him for campaign funds, for it is of course out of the question that I could tell him equally well what I had to say after election if it referred in any possible way to getting money before election. This is so clear that any pretense of misunderstanding is proof positive of the basest dishonesty in whoever wrote the article in question.

As a matter of fact, when Mr. Harriman called it was to complain that the national committee would not turn over for the use of the state campaign in which he was interested funds to run that campaign, and to ask me to tell Cortelyou to give him aid for the state campaign. Mr. Cortelyou is familiar with the facts. In other words, the statement of the Evening Post is not only false and malicious, is not only in direct contradiction of the facts, but is such that it could only have been made by a man who, knowing the facts, deliberately intended to pervert them. Such an act stands on a level of infamy with the worst act ever performed by a corrupt member of the legislature or city official, and stamps the writer with the same moral brand that stamps the bribe-taker.

I have seen only a telegraphic abstract of the article, apparently containing quotations from it. Practically every statement made in these quotations is a falsehood.

To but one more shall I allude. The article speaks of my having attacked corporations, and, referring directly to my Ohio speeches, of my having "sought to inflame the mob and make mischief." In those speeches the prime stand I took was against mob violence as shown by the labor people who are engaged in controversy with a corporation. My statement was in effect that the first duty of the state and the first duty of the officials was to put down disorder and to put down mob violence, and that after such action had been taken, then it was the duty of officials to investigate the corporation, and if it had done wrong to make it pay the penalty of its wrongs and to provide against the wrongdoing in the future. It is but another instance of the peculiar baseness, the peculiar moral obliquity, of the Evening Post that it should pervert the truth in so shameless a fashion.

WARSHIP NORTH DAKOTA ON FIRE

Leaking Oil Is Supposed Cause of Marine Disaster.

THREE KILLED; EIGHT INJURED

Rear Admiral Schroeder Notifies Navy Department of Accident—Damage to Huge War Vessel Is Not Yet Made Known.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The North Dakota, one of the largest and most powerful battleships of the navy, had a fire in her fuel oil system while in Hampton Roads. Three coal passers of the fire room crew were killed and eight other enlisted men were injured. The accident occurred during a test of the fuel oil apparatus under boiler No. 1, which is used to supplement the coal supply. The exact cause of the fire has not been ascertained. Engineer officers of the department believe there was a leakage in the pipes and that the oil was ignited from sparks from the furnace. The victims of the accident were removed to the hospital. The extent of the damage to the ship has not been ascertained.

The accident was reported to the department by Rear Admiral Schroeder, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet. His dispatch was as follows:

"U. S. S. Connecticut, Fort Monroe, Va., Sept. 8.

"Secretary Navy, Washington.
"While North Dakota under way approaching Hampton Roads, fuel oil caught fire. No. 3 fire room, apparently near settling tank. Oil fuel being used for test at time and only on boiler No. 1. Three dead: J. W. Schmidt, Joseph H. Streit, R. Gilmore, all coalpassers. Next of kin have been notified.

"Injured: J. H. McDonough, machinist; E. W. Andrews, chief machinist's mate; C. C. Robert, machinist's mate, first class; S. J. Wittwer, J. A. Brady, F. P. Kinney, J. G. Morrison, fireman, first class; L. F. Piorok, fireman, second class. All injured will recover. Dead and injured transferred to Solace. No estimate possible yet regarding injury to boilers. Ship anchored below Thimble shoals. Will probably come to Roads Friday. Have ordered board investigation."

From the brief report of the accident by Rear Admiral Schroeder, engineers of the navy department believe that the accident must have been due to a leakage in the fuel oil pipes in the fire room. The exact cause of the fire is not yet definitely known.

A WAY TO WOO SLEEP.

Watch a Light Spot on the Wall Till Slumber Comes.

Some months ago a friend informed me that he was a great sufferer from sleeplessness. He had experimented with all manner of remedies—baths, drugs, exercise, dieting—but could find no relief, writes H. Addington Bruce in the Delinquent.

"How about the 'spot on the wall' cure?" I asked him.

"I haven't heard of that. What is it?"

"It's very simple," I told him, "yet very efficacious. I presume that some light from the street lamp or the moon usually gets into your bedroom? Well, where it strikes the wall you will be pretty sure to find spots that seem to stand out vividly from the dark background. Select one of these patches of brightness, one preferably not much larger than a silver dollar. Settle down comfortably in such a way that it will be within easy range of your vision without straining to see it. Then gaze at it steadily.

"Do not, however, try to stare it out of countenance, so to speak. Instead, let the muscles of your eyes relax until the spot appears to have a confused outline. At the same time, if possible, think of nothing but the one idea—I am going to sleep."

"Before long your eyes will begin to feel tired, and they will gradually close. Open them and once more gaze at the spot on the wall. Again they will close. Again open them. Presently you will find it impossible to open them, and the next instant you will be asleep."

Recently I again met him and found him full of enthusiasm.

"That was a splendid scheme," said he. "I sleep like a top nowadays—am asleep almost as soon as I touch the bed."

COCOS MONARCH PROVING KINGDOM
Clunies-Ross Files Royal Father's Will In London.
NO COURTS IN HIS DOMAIN.
Present Head of Indian Ocean Cocos-Islands is Fourth of Reigning Family and Graduate of English University—Mixture of Scotch and Malay Blood, Piebald and Royal, In Veins.
John Sidney Clunies-Ross, now in London, is a figure as strangely romantic as was ever pictured by writers of the most lurid fiction. Just now he is a well educated and wealthy gentleman, descended on one side from an aristocratic Scotch family and on the other from royal Malay blood, but at home, in the Cocos Islands, he is monarch of all her surveys, and he surveys a good deal.
Clunies-Ross, whose father died a month or two ago, is the fourth of his name to rule over the little group of coral islands in the Indian ocean. The story of his family is that of a man who would be king who lived nearly 100 years ago.
The original Clunies-Ross bore the same name as his great-grandson. He was born in the Shetland Islands, whither his family had fled, proscribed, after the failure of the Jacobite uprising in the early eighteenth century. But he obeyed the call of the sea, and in the course of his roving he fell in with one Alexander Hare, a dissolute, imaginative, not overhonest man, who had come under the spell of the east to the extent of adopting most of its vices. He was in disgrace with his employers and found a change of residence imperative.
In Clunies-Ross he met a man as daring as himself, though honorable and straight living. He proposed that the pair of them should seek out an uninhabited group of islands and live thereon like oriental potentates.
The young Scotchman liked the idea, and the two proceeded to the Cocos Islands, 500 miles from other land, and established themselves, together with about 100 others. Hare took a harem along with him and prepared to spend his days in riotous living. Clunies-Ross took his lawful family, was satisfied with the primitive life and looked about for a chance to trade.
He tried spices and coffee and failed. Then he pitched on coconuts as his best investment and planted great groves of the trees. While they were growing he traded as best he could, and a good many Malays, with a few whites, were attracted to the island. Hare tried to enslave the darker portion of the population, with such ill success that he was forced to leave the island. He went to Singapore, where he died not long afterward, deserted by his harem and "courtiers."
Fortune In Coconuts.
The coconuts grew, and Clunies-Ross began to make money out of the oil and various other products of the trees. Trade prospered in other directions also, and the island attracted more inhabitants. The rule of Ross was recognized and welcomed. He was just and kind and withal canny in matters of trading.
Then John, having ruled twenty-seven years, died in 1854. He was succeeded by John George, his son. In his time the territory was proclaimed under British protection, but the change was merely nominal. Nobody interfered with the absolute rule of John George. He further strengthened his position by marrying a Malay woman of royal blood and fine character. Together they developed the islands and saw justice done.
The chief's six sons were all educated in Scotland, for the coconuts were bringing in a tidy sum. George was the eldest son, and he studied engineering that his islands might have the benefit of his skill. When he succeeded his father he devoted himself not only to carrying on trade, but to perfecting the native arts. He in turn married a native woman, who proved as worthy a helpmate as the wife of John George.
All Educated In England.
Like his forbears, George Clunies-Ross had many sons, all educated in England. He was in England with them when he died, in June of this year. His son, John Sidney, succeeds to the kingship, or whatever it may be called, and the property. There has been trouble in England over probating the will, because there is no legal machinery for doing such things in the Cocos Islands, but this little difficulty does not affect the status of John Sidney. The islanders, who number about 700, are well satisfied with the justice of the Clunies-Ross dynasty and have no desire to invite a change of government.
There are neither soldiers nor police in the Cocos Islands. The natives live at peace with one another and with the great spirit they believe in. They have plenty of this world's goods—plenty, that is, for simple, healthy wants.

Bucharest Likes Horse Cars.
Bucharest is a city of 300,000 people, covering a great territory. But on its traction lines there run only 138 horse cars and ten electric cars.

WHILE ENTERTAINING A DUKE
A Few Suggestions Made by a Writer in Lippincott's.
Many people are unnecessarily embarrassed while a duke is visiting them. This is a great mistake. Of course a duke is a duke; but, then, there is no reason why he shouldn't be treated with a certain amount of respect.
To do this it is not necessary to respect him too much. Treat him with as much respect as you think he will stand, but do not lavish it upon him.
If he leaves his boots in front of his door at night, do not feel that it is incumbent upon you to get up at six o'clock to shine them. Wait until seven, anyway. He will never know the difference.
Let him be alone with your daughter as much as he likes. If he represents this, tell him he can get even later. This might under some circumstances seem too candid; but it is better to meet him in a frank and open-hearted manner.
At night, before the duke goes to bed, sneak into his room and turn on all the steam. Being an Englishman, he may not understand this sudden warmth on your part, but you can explain to him the next morning when he fancies himself down to the breakfast table, that it's only a forestate of what he may expect later. Not being able to see a joke, he will probably think that you mean to pay all his expenses to Palm Beach, which will restore him to his good humor.
When you have a duke on hand, do not talk too much about your ancestors, or rub it in about your family. It might make him feel uncomfortable. No duke likes to feel that he is marrying above him.
Naturally you will provide him, while he is with you, with the necessities of life. It is extremely embarrassing when you invite some of your intimate friends in to see your duke to have him sit on the end of your davenport couch with fringe on his trousers and a false bosom to his shirt. Feed him, therefore, on good nourishing food, and make him as respectable as any duke can ever be made.

Always the Way.
Tommy had been invited to dine at a learned professor's house, and his mother was anxious for his good behavior at table. She gave him elaborate instructions.
"Well, Tommy, how did you get on?" she asked on his return. "You are quite sure you didn't do anything impolite?"
"Well, no, ma—at least nothing to speak of."
The mother's anxiety was aroused. "Ah, then, there was something wrong. Now tell me all about it, Tommy."
"Oh, it wasn't much. You see, I was trying to cut my meat when it slipped off the plate on to the floor."
"Oh, my dear boy; what ever did you do?"
"I just said, sort of carelessly, 'That's always the way with tough meat,' and went on with my dinner?"

The Fates.
The attendant was showing the lunatic asylum to the visitor, and opened the door to the first cell. Inside was a man sitting on a stool and gazing vacantly at the wall. "Sad story," said the attendant; "he was in love with a girl, but she married another man, and he lost his reason in grief." They stole out softly, closing the door behind them, and proceeded to the next inmate. This cell was thickly padded, and the man within was stark, staring mad. "Who is this?" inquired the visitor. "This," repeated the attendant, "this is the other man."

ONE WAY OF PUTTING IT.
A gifted Southern woman said that her colored woman surprised her one day with the announcement that she was soon to be married again. The servant explained that she had attended a funeral six weeks before and that she was to wed "the husband of the corpse." She added that the bereaved widow had noticed her at the funeral.
"He said I was the life of the occasion."

A Winner.
A gifted Southern woman said that her colored woman surprised her one day with the announcement that she was soon to be married again. The servant explained that she had attended a funeral six weeks before and that she was to wed "the husband of the corpse." She added that the bereaved widow had noticed her at the funeral.
"He said I was the life of the occasion."

What He Needed.
The waiter girl knew a thing or two about table etiquette. So she sniffed scornfully as she said: "It's not our custom to serve a knife with pie."
"No?" remarked the patron in surprise. "Then bring me an axe."

HOW BILLIARDS ORIGINATED.
London. Pawnbroker Invented the Game in His Leisure Hours.
It is a fact not generally known that the game of billiards was invented by a pawnbroker, William Kew by name, who flourished in London some time in the sixteenth century.
This inventive avuncular relative of the needy used to employ his leisure hours in wet weather when trade was dull by taking down the three balls which were the insignia of his profession and pushing them about the counter of his shop with a yard stick, after the manner of the game as at present played, and using boxes fastened to the sides of his counter for pockets.
Out of this was developed a table with a fence of slight elevation about it to keep the balls from rolling on the floor and to enable the player to make what have since become known as cushion shots.

Philippine Pigs.
Army officers partaking of Filipino meals should know that the natives make great preparations for the killing of a pig. When the owners are ready to kill, the pig is taken upstairs into the kitchen, where it lives luxuriously on boiled rice, is bathed every day and prepared for slaughter like a sacrificial victim. "If you are personally acquainted with a pig of this sort and know the day set for its decease," says one writer, "you may send your servant out to buy fresh pork, otherwise you had better stick to chicken and fish." This advice is given because of the tendency of the native to turn his "rooters" into scavengers.—Army and Navy Journal.

Champagne Corks.
The manufacture of the best kind of corks, those made for champagne bottles, are never intrusted to machines. The ordinary common cork is made by machinery, but the best work invariably is done by human hands, and the champagne cork cannot be trusted to a machine. All the blemishes in the cork have to be taken into consideration, so this work is done by hand labor.
His Reward.
"I wonder what they will do about the reward for that diamond necklace of Bingleton's?" said Dawson. "He offered a thousand dollars for the arrest of the thief, and the fellow was arrested the other night by one of the police dogs." "There will be no trouble about that," said the Genial Idiot. "They'll give the dog a thousand bones."—Harper's Weekly.

Cromwell's Seal.
The seal of Oliver Cromwell, now in the possession of a prominent family in Wales, is a plain gold mounted corundum stone five-eighths of an inch in diameter. It dates from 1653 and was used on several of his deeds. The whole of the Lord's Prayer is engraved upon it.
Performing Lions.
It is often supposed that lions are drugged or surfeited with food prior to going through their performances, though both suggestions are wide of the mark. Drugs are unknown, and from ten to fourteen pounds of food are given once a day.
In the Nature of a Slur.
Mr. Hubert von Herkomer says he once saw the reproduction of a picture called "The Coming Storm" advertised for sale in a shop window and under the title there were the words in large type: "Suitable for a wedding present."
Here's Candor.
"I like to be complimented once in a while and I enjoy being flattered," says the editor of the Howard Courant, "but there's one old girl around here making me as one of her old beaux."—Atlanta Constitution.

LARGEST GAME FISH.
The Tuna sometimes Attains a Weight of 2,000 Pounds.
Charles Frederick Holder, the California naturalist, thus describes that remarkable fish, the tuna: "The tuna is a pelagic fish, a free lance, an ocean rover, a sort of swaggering musketeer of the sea, the largest of what may be termed the game or bouy fishes, attaining a maximum weight of nearly 2,000 pounds and an approximate length of fourteen feet or more. Such a fish is very exceptional, though specimens weighing 1,500 pounds have been taken on the New England coast. I once entered a school of such tunas in the Santa Catalina channel in a big launch. The school divided to port and starboard as we passed through it, and I had a view of one or two fishes that appeared to be more than half as long as the boat."
"These fishes spend the winter in warm latitudes and migrate north as far as the mouth of the St. Lawrence. They are found in the Mediterranean and north to the Lofoden island, yet so far the efforts of anglers, except at Santa Catalina, have failed to take them with the rod. Even here there is a stretch of but eight miles or so where they can be satisfactorily played and taken with rod and reel."
"This region lies on the north side of Santa Catalina, from Avalon to Long point, and to the east as many more, facing the north, and generally smooth—more like a Scottish loch than a fishing ground twenty miles out at sea."—Chicago News.

THIS IS CERTAIN
THE PROOF THAT DIXON READERS CANNOT DENY.
What could furnish stronger evidence to the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently.
Home endorsements should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.
Julius Gottlieb, 418 W. First St., Dixon, Ill., says: "My back pained me for some time and I was often so lame and sore it was hard for me to stoop. The secretions from my kidneys were irregular in passage and I was then convinced that these organs were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a box at the Leake Bros. Co.'s drug store and commenced their use. My experience with this remedy was very satisfactory and I am pleased to acknowledge the benefits I received. Doan's Kidney Pills lived up to all the claims made for them in my case." (Statement given April 14, 1909.)
A Lasting Effect.
Mr. Gottlieb was interviewed on January 4, 1910, and he added to the above: "You may continue to publish my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. The relief they gave me has been permanent and I now have no trouble from my kidneys whatever. I have often told other persons of the great merit of Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Witch Finders.
Three hundred years ago the business of finding out witches was well established and accepted in courts of law as highly proper. In 1640 it is recorded that the magistrates of Newcastle, England, sent to Scotland for an expert witch finder. This gifted person proceeded to show his skill by discovering fifteen witches and securing their conviction. One Matthew Hopkins was a celebrated witch finder of that period. It was easy to discover witches when you knew how. The suspected person could be forced to weep and then detected by the well known fact that a witch could shed only three tears and those from the left eye, or she could be pricked with pins to discover the spot insensible to pain, which was a sure sign of dealings with the devil. That women were far more likely to dabble in witchcraft than men was conceded. The reason was satisfactorily explained by a famous German text book on witches published in the fifteenth century. It was simply that women were inherently wicked, whereas men naturally inclined to goodness.

Experienced saleslady wanted in modern coat and suit department one who is capable of acting as model. Address L. F. B., Joliet, Ill. 210t6

Those interested in the upbuilding of Dixon should buy a few copies of the beautiful special edition recently gotten up by the Telegraph and send them to their friends. It will give them a very fair idea of Dixon and the beauties thereof. They are 5 cents per copy. The price of one souvenir postal will give you many beautiful pictures of Dixon scenery. Surely this is a most inexpensive way of advertising Dixon. 1t

OWN A FARM

The above photograph was taken at Wheaton, Minn., last Fall when twelve or fifteen representative farmers went up to Traverse County to buy a "HOME OF THEIR OWN."

You can do the same thing if you are able to rent a farm in Illinois.

Don't be a little spoke in a big wheel when you can be a whole wheel yourself.

Let us tell you how you can pay for a farm with your crops in five years' time.

Drop us a card or phone No 14581.

THE BEST ALARM CLOCK.

If you have use for an ALARM CLOCK to wake you up these mornings, then you should get a good one. A poor Alarm Clock is much worse than no clock at all. In these short days it is frequently still dark when it is time to get up. You'll oversleep unless you have a RELIABLE ALARM CLOCK.
